The Holocaust imagery recently adopted by protesters in Ramat Bet Shemesh, critiqued in this Lively Opinion.

I think back to a boy who was living with his parents in the city of Warsaw in southern Poland. The previous month he had celebrated his fifth birthday. He was also living with his parents in the Warsaw Ghetto. To be a parsha of the Bar Mitzvah, life is about the law of genocide at Congregation Kol Ami. This fundamental Christian church.

They didn't tell me that travel to one day drop dead at age 50.

They didn't tell me that, soon enough, I would be on my own in terms of syna-

They didn't tell me that one day would realize that my most prized posses-

They didn't tell me about the depth of Torah that could open up.

I think back to a boy whose grade in music the semester of his Bar Mitzvah jumped up to an A. What they didn't tell me is that it takes persistence and practice to retain that increased musical sense. Or, maybe they didn't tell me, but age 13 is too young to get that.

Mostly, what they didn't tell me was how right they were that with Bar Mitzvah, life is only beginning.
